Key areas of expertise or strengths

My areas of expertise have been developed working for almost thirty years across a variety of expert and leadership roles in four institutions. Though well rounded across leadership, management, scholarly communications, learning and teaching services, research services, library spaces and digital library services, my domain expertise areas are in scholarly communications and research support.

Tuesday, 25 August 2020

I have deep knowledge and insight into the professional areas of scholarly communications including - collection development, publisher negotiations, discovery and access, open access and open science, research data management, research assessment, publishing strategies, bibliometrics, research infrastructure including repositories, licensing and copyright.

I also have knowledge, expertise and experience in the leadership and management areas of developing strategy, change management, project management, governance, and budget and financial management.

Statement about you and why you are nominating

I am nominating for a role on the CAUL Board so that I may contribute my areas of expertise to the continued attainment of CAUL objectives, particularly in the areas of scholarly communications and research services. This is a critical time for CAUL to lead the ANZ higher education sector through the transition to more equitable access to research and education resources. CAUL plays a vital role in the transition to transformative publisher agreements, a national approach to open, optimising our research infrastructure, and preparing our people for the future.

There is also the opportunity for CAUL and the AOASG to work even more closely together. I could also contribute to the finance and risk management space.

Although I have not pursued a role of the CAUL Board to date, due to competing time demands, I feel now is a more suitable time.

Key areas of expertise or strengths

If I am successful in my nomination I would bring to the CAUL Board a wide range of Executive Management and Board level experience and expertise. As a previous President of both CAUDIT and the AAF, and currently as the Board Chair of SABRENet Ltd, I believe I have established a track record of being able to make a contribution to the effective governance of member based organisations. I have conducted independent reviews for a number of Universities in Australia and overseas and I have been appointed by the Commonwealth government to boards and steering committees for major research infrastructure projects. I like to build and maintain relationships and would look to leverage the relationships I have established in the sector to help CAUL achieve its goals.

Statement about you and why you are nominating

I have had overall responsibility for both Library and IT at UniSA since 2013 and this dual responsibility has given me a deep insight into both professions and the increasingly critical role they play in a University. I believe that Librarians have the opportunity to be at the heart of the digital transformation that is underway in teaching, learning and research and this is something that I would like to help CAUL to foster and encourage at a local, national and international level. I have formal qualifications in engineering, computing, business management and finance and my Board

I've been working in university libraries for over twenty years, with more than half that time in management and leadership roles across all sections of the university library. In that time, I've led two major change management processes, and the selection and implementation of a library systems platform and reading list platform. I've worked hard to ensure that the library's contributions, expertise and knowledge is acknowledged and sought as an integral part of the teaching, learning and research activities of the university. My collaborative, collegial, and constructive approach plus my extensive experience and knowledge of university libraries and the
